

Call for Award Nominations

The International and Intercultural Communication Division (IICD) invites nominations and self-nominations for its 2022 (1) Distinguished Scholarship Awards; (2) Distinguished Scholar Award; and (3) Early Career Award.

(1) Distinguished Scholarship Awards for work copyrighted in 2021:

Up to five awards will be given in the following categories:

- Best Book (single-authored or co-authored)
- Best Book (edited or co-edited)
- Best Article or Book Chapter
- Best Dissertation and/or Master's Thesis

Submissions must include the following:

1. A nomination letter outlining justification for the award. In addition, this letter should confirm that the nominee is currently an IICD member.
2. Work itself
 - If a book submission (authored or edited), send three (3) copies of the complete work (please email Dr. Wei Sun at wei.sun@howard.edu for her mailing address). You may ask your publisher to send copies directly as part of their promo.
 - If an article/book chapter submission, send a PDF copy.
 - If a dissertation/Master's thesis submission, send a PDF copy.

(2) Distinguished Scholar Award

This award celebrates the research of an established scholar who has made significant scholarly contributions to the field of international and intercultural communication. This award annually recognizes an IICD member for their lifetime career achievement in the field of international and intercultural communication.

(3) Early Career Award

This award is given annually to an IICD member who is at the early-career stage (no more than six years past receipt of the doctoral degree) and who has already made significant scholarly impact to the field of international and intercultural communication. The award committee evaluates the contributions and promise of an IICD early-career scholar on the strength of their work and their future scholarly leadership in the field of international and intercultural communication.

Nomination Packet:

A nomination packet should include:

- A 1-2 single-spaced page nomination letter that includes the nominee's scholarly contributions to the field of international and intercultural communication and makes a persuasive case for the award, and confirms the nominee is currently an IICD member,
- Two additional letters of support, and
- The nominee's most current CV.
(No additional material should be submitted.)

Submit all nomination materials via electronic submission to Wei Sun at wei.sun@howard.edu. In the subject field, please type, "2022 IICD Scholarship Award Nomination," or "2022 IICD Distinguished Scholar Award Nomination," or "2022 IICD Early Career Award Nomination." Your nomination packet must be submitted as a single PDF that includes the above-mentioned materials.

Awards will be presented at the International and Intercultural Communication Division's (IICD) Business Meeting, which will be held at the 2022 NCA convention in New Orleans. All nominees must be IICD members by the awards' submission deadline and maintain their IICD membership through that year's NCA convention. Recipients of the awards will be notified by October 1, 2022 and are expected to be present for the award presentations. Self, peer, and/or advisor nominations are welcomed. The awards committee will not accept more than one submission of the same (co-)author, whether they are nominated or self-nominated, regardless of category. Works must have been copyrighted during the 2021 calendar year.

Nomination packets must be received by April 30, 2022.
