

Call for Nominations/Applications:
Communication and Race Editor-Elect
Assuming duties in 2026; overseeing 2027-2029 volumes

During 2025, NCA's Publications Council will nominate an Editor-Elect (or co-Editors-Elect) for Communication and Race. The newly appointed Editor will begin processing manuscripts early in 2026 and will oversee the volumes for 2027- 2029. The journal is published three times each year.

Editors of NCA journals occupy a particularly prominent leadership position in the field. In naming editorial boards, selecting reviewers for manuscripts, and making final publication decisions (among other duties), they make a vitally important contribution to the discipline, and they play a key role in maintaining the highest standards of integrity and scholarly inquiry.

Position statement on the teaching, scholarly/creative activity, and service value of editing an NCA journal.

Communication and Race is a peer-reviewed publication of the National Communication Association. The journal publishes original scholarship on the centrality of race, racism, and colonialism to the praxis of communication. The journal contributes in distinct ways to the Communication discipline by building on the theories and epistemologies of Black, Ethnic, Latinx, Indigenous, and Asian studies scholars.

Communication and Race calls for interdisciplinary scholarship that welcomes a variety of methods in the field, including (but not limited to) rhetorical, interpretive, (auto)ethnographic, social-scientific, historical, humanistic, narrative, statistical, poetic, and political-economic. The journal seeks articles that are rooted in non-Western and Western paradigms. It encourages essays that move us beyond mere reactive critiques of Western epistemologies and constructs. Especially welcomed are interdisciplinary, international, and transnational articles that draw a connection between Communication Studies and other important theoretical lineages and fields.

In addition to research essays, Communication and Race publishes special issues as well as occasional reviews of major new books.

Armond Towns, Carleton University, is the current Editor.
